

41st Signal Battalion

Coat of Arms

SHIELD: Argent, on a fess tenne an ogress throughout, fimbriated of the first, surmounted by two lightning flashes of the like, that issuing from the dexter side point to base and that on the sinister reversed, in chief a fleur-de-lis of the second.

CREST: On a wreath of the colors (argent and tenne) an eagle's head or, gorged with a collar gules, charged with a lightning flash of the first, superimposed in base by a palm frond fesswise proper.

MOTTO: Pax Nostra Finis (Peace is our goal)

The colors orange and white are for the Signal Corps. The fess crossing the field is used to represent a wire or cable and the black circle, the soft iron diaphragm in telephonic equipment. The lightning flashes allude to the currents which cause the diaphragm to vibrate and thus transmit sound. The black circle thus symbolizes a sounding board for all types of signal apparatus and its construction and maintenance. The fleur-de-lis signifies combat service in Europe during World War II. The eagle in the crest embodies strength and vigilance. It represents service in Europe during World War II and in Vietnam. Gold is emblematic of honor and high achievement. Red reflects valor and is the color of the Meritorious Unit Commendations which were awarded the organization for service

UNOFFICIAL MOTTO AND MONIKER: “Victory's Voice”, the “Knight Battalion”

“KNIGHTS ALWAYS!”
